

Abstract of the Disclosure

A plumbing trap having flexible and extensible arms that allow installation of the trap between drain tail pieces and drain outlets of various spacings and orientations while reducing the need for cutting trap elements during installation or assembly of a trap from multiple components.